LIFE SKILLS

ETIQUETTE TRAINING

The business meal is a popular activity in the workplace; thus, it is fitting for business students to understand business meal etiquette as they embark on their careers. This interactive session was designed to be easily understood by beginners on key points to be kept in mind on dining etiquette.

On the 1st and 2nd of May 2023, Batch 19 of MBA program participated in an etiquette training program on business meal etiquette, which was held at Hotel Courtyard by Marriott Kochi Airport, Nedumbassery and hosted by Mr. Saravanan and team. The faculty members Ms. Jomsy Thomas and Dr. Shinil Sebastian accompanied the students. Upon arrival, the Marriott staff extended a warm welcome to the students, and Mr. Saravanan provided a brief overview of Marriott International, Inc. before leading the group to the etiquette hall where they sat in small groups.

During the training, Mr. Saravanan emphasized the importance of proper etiquette during formal dining sessions, and the students were taught various skills such as how to use napkins, champagne glasses, and make restaurant or bar bookings. They also learned how to handle complaints when dining with their boss, whom to give preference to during a dine-out with the boss, and how to properly use their fork and spoon. Furthermore, the students received special training on how to use their spoon and fork for eating bread by spreading butter on it. They were also taught how to communicate in formal language while dining and how to take food on their plate using a clock example, showing each time gap for each purpose. The power point presentations during the training helped the students to understand better what they were practicing.

The students expressed their gratitude towards the training team, the SCMS Management Principal, SSTM, Dr. Sashi Kumar, HOD, MBA , SSTM, Dr. Praveena K and faculty members for providing them with this wonderful opportunity to learn. Overall, the training provided the students with valuable insight and skills that they can apply in their future business endeavours.

Report

A CPR (Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation) training workshop was conducted for B.Com students at SCMS School of Technology and Management.

The workshop sought to provide students with life-saving skills and knowledge relevant to delivering prompt assistance in cases of cardiac emergencies. This report includes an overview of the workshop's essential aspects, objectives, activities, and outcomes.

The key objectives of the CPR training programme were to educate students about the importance of CPR in saving lives, to provide hands-on training in performing effective CPR, and to boost students' confidence in responding to emergency situations.

The workshop had been designed to be interactive and practical. The course began with an overview of CPR, its importance, and the function it plays in emergency response.

Trained instructors taught proper techniques for doing chest compressions and rescue breaths on mannequins. Students were then divided into smaller groups to practise CPR skills under the supervision of the instructors. This hands-on experience helped students build confidence and enhance their talents. Students were also taught the fundamentals of AED (Automated External Defibrillator) use, emphasising its necessity in particular cardiac arrest scenarios. An interactive question-and-answer session allowed students to clarify issues and expand their understanding.

REPORT

Mrs. Anu Suraj held a stress-management workshop titled "Finding Balance in Chaos" at SCMS School of Technology and Management to address the rising problem of stress among students. The goal of the seminar was to give students useful techniques and methods for managing and coping with stress.

She began by defining stress and outlining its prevalent causes and effects on physical and mental health. She emphasized that stress is a natural reaction that may be managed in order to live a healthier lifestyle. She also mentioned stress symptoms such as sleep problems, impatience, difficulties concentrating, and bodily symptoms such as headaches or stomachaches. Students were educated to recognize these warning indicators in themselves and their peers.

Mrs. Anu headed the students through a guided breathing exercise, instructing them to focus on their breath to quiet their minds.

Effective time management was regarded as an important part of stress reduction. She provided practical advice on developing calendars, defining goals, and reducing things down into small chunks, allowing students to feel more in charge of their academic and personal life.

Mrs. Anu also emphasised the necessity of getting help from friends, family, or mental health specialists when dealing with overwhelming stress. She encouraged open communication and emphasised that requesting help is a show of strength, not weakness.

The programme concluded with an interactive Q&A session in which students were able to ask questions and share their experiences with stress.
